

MOKENA PEOPLE
IN ACCIDENT
SUNDAY EVENING

As Charles Manhart and Ralph Schoeneck were driving to Joliet Sunday evening they figured in an auto accident.

It was about 8:45 and they were going west to Joliet. About a quarter mile east of New Lenox they noticed a car coming toward them which was way over the black line in the west bound lane.

Manhart, who was driving his car, pulled to the right of the road as far as he could to avoid meeting it. But at that instant it hit and side-swiped the car directly in front of Manhart, which was driven by Earl Yunker of Mokena.

Glancing off the Yunker car, it ran directly into the Manhart car with a crushing blow, badly denting in the whole left side of the Manhart car.

This east bound car was being driven by Octaviano V. Zavola, a Mexican, of 18 Collins street, Joliet, whose car was filled with other people. No one was injured.

Police were called who made a record of the affair. Each stated they were covered by insurance.

Damage to the Yunker car was scraping of the fenders, rear door and bumper.

The couple has four children living, Edwin and Bertha of Rockford, and Orlando and Gordon of Peconica; also nine grandchildren and four great grandchildren. A son, Arthur, died in 1931. Both Mr. and Mrs. Benson are active and in good health.

Joan Russell and Stanley Baudry Wed
In Joliet Church

Miss Joan Augusta Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus E. Russell, New Lenox, became the bride of Stanley Eugene Baudry at a 3 o'clock ceremony Saturday afternoon, February 17, in the Ridgewood Baptist church, Joliet. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Florimond Baudry, of Mokena.

Rev. John D. Taylor, pastor, officiated at the mid-winter, double ring service. Large fan-shaped bouquets of white gladioli, snapdragons and stock decorated the church, used with ferns, palms and white candles.

Edward Harrison, soloist, sang "One Alone," "Wedding Song" by Loveless and "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us." Ann Eyle, the organist, played "Moonlight Sonata," "Schubert's Serenade," "Calm as the Night," and "O Perfect Love."

Mr. Russell gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore a floor length gown of eggshell satin featuring a round neckline with bertha-type collar forming cap sleeves and a bustle back. Her French illusion finger tip veil was held in place by an eggshell satin braided halo. She wore three-quarter length satin gauntlets. Her only jewelry was a two strand pearl necklace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchid and hyacinth blooms.

Miss Phyllis Russell attended her cousin as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lydia Baudry, sister of the groom, and Miss Gertrude Clark, of Chicago. They wore identical gowns of ribbon taffeta with matching quarter length gauntlets and net headbands caught with rhinestones. Miss Russell's gown was of burnt orange and the bridesmaids wore deep aqua. Each had a rhinestone necklace. Their cascade bouquets were of yellow roses, carnations and Spanish iris tied with burnt orange and yellow satin ribbon.

Arthur Benson, Mokena, was best man and ushers were William Ferrell and Harvey Russell.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Russell wore a teal blue dress with white accessories. Mrs. Baudry was dressed in navy with pink accessories. Both wore pink carnation corsages.

About 200 attended the reception held in the church parlors. The bridal table was covered with a crocheted cloth and centered with a four tiered wedding cake with a miniature bride and groom on top. White tapers and silver urns decorated the table also. Mrs. William Ferrell served the wedding cake, Mrs. Donald Woodman, Mrs. J. D. Henderson and Mrs. R. White poured.

At the regular joint meeting of the Orland school board Wednesday, February 14, a group of citizens presented a letter containing over 100 signatures recommending that the High School board take whatever action necessary for adding a sufficient number of rooms to the present school building to provide adequate space for the Orland High school. (The urgent need for additional space for high school requirements was outlined by Dr. Henry in a letter to the Board of Education dated December 7, 1950.)

It was the feeling of those presenting the petition that an expenditure for permanent construction would be an excellent investment in the educational facilities of Orland township. Also, that such an expenditure should not be a hindrance to any worthwhile high school consolidation in the future, inasmuch as the high school now has assets totaling approximately the same amount as the proposed bond issue. It was pointed out that any consolidation and subsequent building program would require several years for completion.

The Board promised to give the matter their consideration.

About 75% of the members have already paid their dues, leaving only a small number of you comrades delinquent. one more reason why
of the tractor-wise!

Only after meeting exacting standards in all phases of production is the name John Deere attached to a John Deere product. Because of this, the name John Deere has become synonymous with quality the country over.

All the way through, quality controls production. Raw materials are tested thoroughly and analyzed completely to assure uniformly high quality throughout. Proved manufacturing methods are used by experienced workmen, but that's not enough. In every phase of construction, quality inspections and tests are frequent and many. Tolerances are checked constantly; parts are inspected carefully. Even after the final assembly, every tractor is tested thoroughly before it is shipped.

What does this mean to you? Just this—every John Deere Tractor is quality-built through and through, assuring more dependable performance, greater economy, and longer life.

A. C. BAUCH

Frankfort, Ill.

From Congressman N. M. Mason
This Is The Record. When Communist aggression threatened in Korea last Spring, President Truman was given a defense plan drafted by the military leaders that compose our War College. The plan called for punishing the Communist aggressors without sending any ground troops into Korea. It called for blockading Korea with our Navy and the systematic destruction of the industry and transportation system of North Korea with our heavy bombers. The Communists were to be allowed to push into South Korea but their war supplies were to be cut off, thereby making them helpless to carry on an offensive campaign. Standing off in safety out of reach of the Communists we would be able to pound them to death. Thus we would have been in the smart position of being able to punish without being made to suffer; while the Communists would be in the helpless position of having to take punishment from a foe they could not get at.

When President Truman scrapped the War College plan, following the advice of Acheson and Marshall, and ordered MacArthur to send our boys into Korea, he made a terrible blunder. That blunder has cost us the lives of some 50,000 American boys, and we still are no better off than when we went into Korea last June.

Are we now to repeat our Korean blunder in Europe? Why not establish a chain of bases in Spain and North Africa? Then if Russia invades Europe we could attack her industrial centers and her transportation system by air, using our atom bombs where they will do the most damage. We hold an advantage over Russia in the air; she has not an advantage over us on land. Why not use our advantage in the air and save our manpower? Why not follow the advice of our military leaders instead of following the advice of such men as Acheson?

The Current RFC Scandal. President Truman at a recent news conference called the Fulbright Senate Committee's report on the operations of the RFC "asinine." The report simply pointed out that loans have been made by the RFC on the basis of political consideration, and that President Truman's personal aide, Donald Dawson, was active in arranging such loans.

The Hoover Commission's report of January 1949, two years ago, called attention to the fact that the present RFC program "opens up dangerous possibilities of waste and favoritism," and "it invites political and private pressure, or even corruption." The Fulbright report says that the predicted "waste, favoritism and corruption" has occurred, and it offers plenty of documentary evidence to prove the charges.

The RFC occupies an important place in the financing of our defense production. Consequently favoritism or mismanagement on the part of the RFC handicaps our defense effort and undermines public confidence in all government agencies. Drastic action to restore the integrity of the RFC should be taken by the President. A sensitivity to right and wrong is needed today in high places. Calling a Senate report based upon facts "asinine" does not show a sensitivity to right and wrong.

President Truman's intemperance use of the word "asinine," and his attempt to belittle the conscientious work of the Fulbright Committee, can only suggest to the American people that in this case the shoe fits so tight that it pinches—and when a shoe pinches it generally produces an ugly temper.

Do You Know that during the fiscal year 1952 the Federal government proposes to spend $461 for each man, woman, and child in the country? This is seven times as great as the per capita expenditures of the Federal government in fiscal year 1939.

TEST RESULT OF PHONEVISION VS. THEATER MOVIE'S

Zenith Radio Corporation has released information on the first four weeks' operations of its limited commercial test of Phonevision, a system of subscription television whereby 300 typical Chicago families are being offered a daily choice of feature motion pictures at a "home box office" fee of $1 per movie. The test which began January 1, is being conducted to provide the Federal Communications Commission with data on the degree of public interest in and acceptance of Phonevision as a system whereby people may pay, to see in their homes via television, for such programs as feature motion pictures and other entertainment that they are now accustomed to pay to see in theaters, stadia etc.

This data is being issued in response to widespread interest and inquiries from many segments of business and the public inasmuch as complete details on results of the test had previously been made available only to the cooperating motion picture producers who test.

During the first four weeks of the test, the Phonevision home-movie service had 2,561 "box office sales" from among its 300 test families. That is, the average test family "went to the movies at home" 8½ times during the period, or slightly more than twice a week.

During the first week, with a high novelty factor present, the average family saw 3.1 movies, but for the last three weeks patronage had settled down to an average of 1.8 movies per week.

In releasing the first four weeks' results, Commander E. F. McDonald, Jr., president of Zenith, declared that after spending nearly 20 years and more than a million dollars perfecting Phonevision, he and his associates were almost afraid to believe the results of this, their first acid test of the system.

To illustrate, Commander McDonald pointed out that if only the ten million American families who now have television sets proved as willing to pay to see feature films on them as the 300 test families have during the first four weeks, the results add up to over one billion dollars per year.

"Being manufacturers and engineers," said McDonald, "we are willing to leave analysis of the final results of our test up to Hollywood's experts on movies and up to the FCC, for whom we are gathering this data, but here's what we know so far:

"On an overall average for the period, we have reached 30% of our audience—our 10 lowest grossing pictures reached 22% of our audience." "Nine out of ten of our test families reported that they prefer a movie on Phonevision at home rather than seeing it in the theater."

"The spread of viewing habits is very wide, as might be expected, since our panel was selected to give us a typical cross-section of homes. Four families have seen only one film during the period, and one rugged family has seen all of them. The median family has seen just over two films per week."

"The big question, 'how do these figures compare with the normal movie-going habits of typical families who now see the same kind of movies in their local movie theaters?' Based on published survey figures, there are currently about 60 million movie admissions per week. This would indicate that the average American goes to the movies less than once every two weeks. Hence our test families, who were selected for us by the National Opinion Research Center of the University of Chicago in order to insure a true cross-section, are seeing movies more than three times as often at home on Phonevision as the average American sees them at the movie houses."

"We fully expect that as the novelty of this test wears off, and after our test families have received their first month's bill for home movie entertainment, our patronage may decline during the second and third month. We are also aware that our feature films, none of which are newer than 1948 releases, and which some 20% of our audience have already seen, are competing with the latest movies showing in Chicago theaters."

"On this very point, however, we are impressed by the fact that we are obviously reaching into that audience, represented among our 300 test families, who were never habitual movie-theater customers. It is reasonable to assume that many of those who did not buy the pictures on Phonevision refrained because they had already seen them. This would suggest that many of our audience are seeing the pictures they purchase for the first time in spite of the fact that each of these pictures has long since completed its theater run, and some have been re-issued. In reaching this new audience—that vast segment of our population that never were regular theater-goers—Phonevision would enable Hollywood to add a heretofore unavailable audience."

"Our experience to date, disregarding the first week because of its high novelty factor, shows an average attendance of 1.8 times per week per family. Projecting this against the 10 million television receivers presently in use in the United States and considering 50% of the income as the producers' share, Hollywood's annual income from Phonevision would be over 450 million dollars."

"And predictions are that we will eventually have 40 million or more TV sets in homes—Chairman Wayne Coy of the FCC predicts 50 million."

"Because these figures and their potentialities are so startling, we have invited every one of the co-operating producers to send a representative to Chicago to observe the test in full detail first-hand, and to offer suggestions for making the test yield the fullest possible information for all concerned. Full statistical reports on the test from week to week are supplied to all producers whose films are being used.

"Needless to add," concluded Commander McDonald, "we will welcome comments and reactions from all industry groups and persons who have shown a professional interest in this unique experiment, and I suspect we will get it."

Charges State Dept. Helped Cover Up Coffee Price Control

Veteran business reporter Leslie Gould charged today that the State Department helped cover up coffee price manipulations which gained millions of dollars for U. S. and South American speculators.

Writing in the February issue of Cosmopolitan magazine, Gould says the artificial rigging of the market added six to seven hundred million dollars a year to America's coffee bill, or around $25 a year for each family.

According to this expert, the State Department even forced a powerful Senatorial investigation committee to tone down its report and soften its criticism of the racketeers.

Gould says that published stories about small coffee crops and increased consumption were entirely false, and points out that, between early spring and October of 1949, prices soared from 21 cents to 42 cents a pound on the New York Coffee Exchange.

Explaining that price manipulations were easy for South American speculators "because the U. S. antitrust and antimonopoly laws do not apply to them," the writer cites rumors that some Washington politicians may be splitting some of the millions snatched from the American housewife's purse.

Gould names Manuel Mejia, head of a hundred-million-dollar Colombia combine, as the man who "can hold coffee off the market or release it for sale, according to market conditions."

Glory and Service

Lesson for February 25, 1951

THERE ARE two sides of the Christian life that don't seem to mix. One of these we can call Glory. The very word suggests something not of this world; it calls up mystic visions, inner raptures, the light of heaven. We think of saints and angels in glory, for that is where they belong. But we ourselves can have a bit of it here and now.

Dr. Foreman

When Glory Comes

NOT every Christian has an experience of glory in this life. But those who do, usually find that it comes only at rare intervals, when one is alone, after long and perhaps painful prayer.

Sometimes it is an actual experience of something like great and blinding light; sometimes a hearing of voices as from another shore; sometimes a feeling of unutterable peace and joy such as nothing in this world can give. Whatever form it takes, the experience we are calling "glory" is always connected in the mind and heart with the felt presence of God. It may come in church or it may not; it may come on a river at sunset or some golden night beneath the stars.

However it comes, one longs above all things for it to remain. And while it does remain, one wishes to hear no human voice.

When Service Calls

BUT the Christian life is not all glory, by any means. If the glory-side is spiritual, the service-side is material. If the glory cannot be shared, the whole idea of service is sharing. For moments of glory there can be no date nor schedule, no predicted time and place, but acts of service must often be done by calendar and clock.

Glory may not come to every one but service is the duty of all. Yet service, like glory, may come to us from without. At a time when one least expects it, one will be called on for a service one is scarce prepared to give.

Service calls us every day; weariness and pain may at times bar us from glory, but only the last weariness and the most disabling pain will disbar us from service. Glory may be for those far advanced in the spiritual life; service is for these too, but also for the beginners.

The Weaving of Gold and Grey

NOW the trouble is that glory and service seem to get in each other's way. We actually feel like different persons, in glory and in service.

Let us say on a morning in church, when the winter sun is streaming through the windows on the communion bread and wine, and in the silence the solemn words are heard once more: "This is my body, broken for you," one may feel, in Miss Millay's words, "This moment is the best the world can give, The tranquil blossom on the tortured stem."

But the next day, when one is teaching a class of mischievous boys, or helping a neighbor fix a flat tire, or baby-sitting, or spading up a garden,—one does not feel like the same person. Can religion, the Christian religion, take in both glory and service?

Some Christians have thought not. Some have gone in for one, some for the other. Some live only for the high hours of worship and rapture, counting all the time between their radiant hours as "dark nights of the soul." Others leave worship to others; they are seldom to be found at communion, but they can always be counted on to help with church suppers or community chest drives.

Jesus showed us the better way. It is not a choice between glory and service; his life included both. He had his high moments, as on the Mount of Transfiguration; but they did not long remain. Presently he found himself down in the valley with disciples who did not understand him, and with demons hard to cast out.

Jesus took both sides of religion and made them one. There was glory in his service and there was service in his glory. (In the very hour of his transfiguration, did he not speak of his death?) The true Christian life, like that of Jesus, weaves the gold and the grey together, the shining gold of life's high moments, and the long-wearing grey of the years of service.

Illinois TAX FACTS

By George E. Mahin, Executive Secretary, Illinois Taxpayers' Federation

Another batch of legislation has been written in Washington which the Illinois General Assembly MUST enact under threat of loss of Federal funds.

Passage of H. R. 6000 by Congress in 1950 made extensive revisions in the Federal Social Security Act, in addition to extending social security to many not previously covered, increasing benefits and increasing the tax on employee and employer to 1½% each on the first $3600 of the employee's income instead of the first $3000. H. R. 6000 also made extensive changes in the mandatory requirements that Illinois must meet in order to continue to receive federal funds for its public aid programs.

The Illinois General Assembly, which has in the past defeated attempts to provide for State supervision of all hospitals and related institutions, both public and private, MUST enact such legislation before July 1, 1953, under threat of loss of federal funds for the old age assistance program, blind assistance, and the new aid program proposed for the permanently and totally disabled.

The Illinois General Assembly MUST at its current session amend the present law to permit examination of applicants for blind assistance by optometrists as well as by physicians skilled in diseases of the eye, whichever the applicants may select.

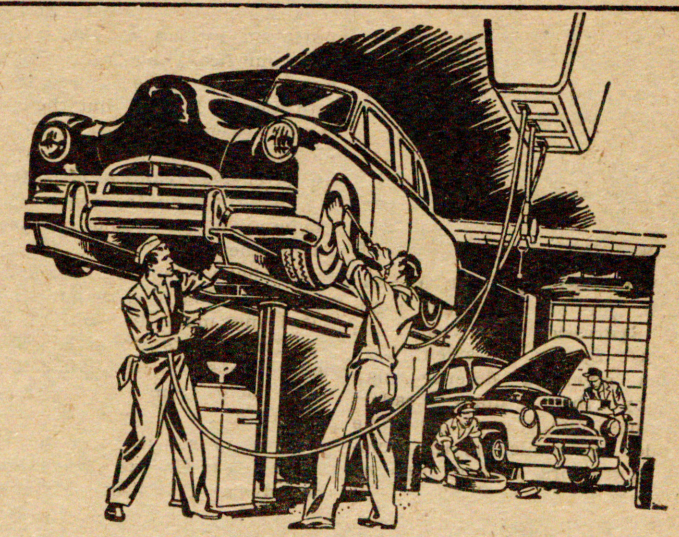

There are many other MUST bills of lesser importance that the Federal Congress through H. R. 6000 has made it mandatory for the Illinois General Assembly to enact or else face loss of federal funds.

It was a result of such MUST dictation from Washington that the Illinois General Assembly some years ago made all public assistance records secret and confidential, so that no one can find out who is receiving public aid or in what amount.

Regardless of their merits, these MUST proposals of H. R. 6000 again raise the serious question of how far and how long the state legislatures will submit to such dictation in order to get back from Washington thirty pieces of silver.

Someday some state legislature is going to tell the federal government that it refuses to knuckle under to such dictation, refuses to enact such MUST legislation, and then will repeal the secrecy laws that have made public charity a chisel's paradise.

When that happens, the Federal Congressmen from that state will be forced out of their present indifference to this problem and the Federal laws will be changed—or the state legislators who had intestinal fortitude enough to rebel against dictation will be in Congress instead. Could this happen here in Illinois?

Cover Old Sewing Machine

SLIPCOVER for an old-fashioned sewing machine will convert it into an object of beauty. First make a cover to fit over the top of the machine. Use 1 by 2-inch lumber for the rectangular framework, attaching a panel of Masonite 3/16" Tempered Presdwood with casing nails.

Apply a good quality prime coat. Then fill the nail holes with putty or plastic wood, and enamel the surface with any desired color.

A length of fabric equal to twice the distance around three sides of the cover will be needed for the skirt. After the top has been hemmed, tack the material to the wooden frame of the cover. In attaching the goods, deep pleats may be formed. An alternative is to gather the material and stitch it before tacking it in place.

Fit the skirt and cover on the machine, measuring a hem one-half inch from the floor. Make the hem, press the fabric, and the job is done.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Sometimes Good
Intentions Aren't Enough

That fire at the Griffin place didn't do much damage last week, but Volunteer Chief Murphy was pretty angry about it. Spoke to some of us over dinner and a bottle of beer.

"Griffin's farm is a good mile from town," he said. "And by the time we'd dodged all the people on the highway who were going to watch, we hadn't a minute to waste."

"Then blamed if those sight-seers hadn't parked cars right in Griffin's driveway and there was a mob of people milling around the house—just gawking. Joe, tell folks a fire's no sideshow. Ask 'em to think of the other fellow!"

From where I sit, some of us need to be reminded occasionally that even though our intentions are good we may be unfairly interfering. Whether it's blocking the right-of-way of fire equipment or criticizing a person's right to enjoy a temperate glass of beer now and then—the American way is to give way, and give the other fellow his fair "share of the road!"

TODAY'S meditation

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22

"...ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's" (1 Corinthians 6:20). Read Acts 7:51-60.

When Wendell Phillips was a boy of 14, he heard Lyman Beecher preach on the theme, "You Belong to God." The sermon marked the beginning of a useful Christian life. Here are Phillips' own words about the experience:

"I went home after that service, threw myself on the floor in my room, and with locked doors prayed, 'O God, I belong to Thee; take what is Thine own. I ask this, that whenever a thing be wrong, it may have no power or temptation over me; whenever a thing be right, it may take no courage to do it.' From that day to this it has been so, Whenever I have known a thing to be right, it has taken no courage to do it."

Followers of God who have glorified Him and advanced His cause have not only held convictions but possessed the courage to stand for them.

PRAYER

O God, in this day when the forces of evil seek to suppress the work, give to each of us the boldness to witness for Thee. May Thy indwelling Spirit ever keep us conscious of our debt to Thee for Thy redeeming power. In the name of Christ, through whom we have salvation, we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Do I not only hold convictions but possess the courage to stand up for them?

PUBLIC NOTICE
Notice of Proposed Change in Election Schedules E-2 and E-20

Public Service Company of Northern Illinois hereby gives notice to the public that it has filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission on February 16, 1951, the proposed revisions and cancellations listed below:

1. The revision of Rates 5 and 6, General Electric Service. These two rates, formerly titled "Commercial and Industrial Electric Service" are revised primarily to simplify the form of the rates by combining their second and third energy blocks. This change will involve no increase in charges.

2. The cancellation of the following obsolete rates and riders: Rate 53, Residential Electric Service

Rate 61, Alternative Lighting Service

Rate 69, Electric Cooking Service

Rate 70, Commercial Electric Service

Rate 73, Commercial Light and Power Service

Rate 76, Regular Power Service

Rider 12, Company Employee Rate

Rider 14, Temporary Rate Hours

Rider 15, Charitable or Semi-Charitable Institutions

Rider 19, Air Conditioning

Rider 20, Auxiliary or Reserve

Rider 21, Reciprocal Employee Rate

No customers are being served on the above Rate 61, Rider 14, or Rider 20. The relatively small number of customers now served on the other obsolete rates and riders listed above will be transferred to standard rates.

The proposed transfers to standard rates will result in decreased charges for some customers and in increased charges for others.

A new Rider 23, Temporary Billing—Residential Electric Service, is filed in connection with the above cancellations to temporarily permit the adding of meter readings on standard residential Rate 1 until wiring changes can be made.

Further information with respect thereto may be obtained either directly from this Company or by addressing the Secretary of the Illinois Commerce Commission at Springfield, Illinois.

A copy of the proposed change in the schedules may be inspected by any interested party at any business office of this company.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY of Northern Illinois
By C. G. Bennett
Vice President

TO ALL non-registered voters living in the un-incorporated part of Orland Township: My office will be open for registration March 1, 2, and 3, 1951.

RALPH L. AGATE
Town Clerk,
Feb. 22, March 1.

JOSEPH L. RUST,
Village Clerk.

EXIN-UP TIPS
For Farm and Home

EVERY home seems to need more storage space. Here's a hint: Using an old table, make it attractive by adding panels and transforming an eyesore into a closed cabinet. Dust-proof storage will thus be provided at negligible cost.

Top and sides are covered with Masonite one-eighth-inch tempered hardboard, which is highly dent and scuff resistant. It can be painted in attractive colors or left in its natural shade, a deep brown.

The illustration gives an idea of the possibilities. Note the doors, which likewise are constructed of the hardboard on a framing of light lumber. The old table won't recognize itself in its new dress!

Any home craftsman handy with common tools can do a neat job of conversion with an old table. However, for helpful working drawings that give detailed directions, it is suggested that he write for free plan No. AE 158, to Home Service Bureau, 111 West Washington St., Chicago 2, Ill.

WATCHFULNESS on the part of the poultryman can prevent a costly drop in egg production during these winter months and the resultant loss of farm profits.

There are several ways to anticipate such slumps and avoid them, but primarily it's a matter of keeping a close watch on the birds and being able to foresee an oncoming egg slump before it becomes serious.

One of the first signs to watch for is a decline in feed consumption. This means keeping a close check on how much feed each pen is eating, so that when the feed intake drops off, it will be noticed right away.

Handling a few birds each day is one way a poultryman can tell whether his birds are losing weight. Birds that are losing weight usually slow up in their egg production. If the birds aren't handled, their weight loss and the accompanying loss in production might not be noticed until it has already cost a considerable amount.

That means watching the weight of the birds is necessary to prevent this wintertime threat to keeping egg production as high as possible.

Another thing that can have a bad effect on egg production is a sudden or abrupt change in the way the birds are managed. Changes in their regular feeding routine or the irregular use of artificial lights often have a bad effect on egg production. A cold snap, too, can cause a noticeable drop, unless precautions are taken to keep the birds warm.

Once a slump in egg production is detected, it can usually be prevented by feeding wet mash or pellets. This should step up feed consumption and stop a decrease in body weight.

All these precautions and remedies, of course, hinge on one thing—watchfulness on the part of the poultryman. The old "stitch in time—" saying applies here as well as in any other phase of farming.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors who kindly remembered our son Ralph Kingery on his birthday Feb. 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Strassenberg

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Olsen attended the Chicago Automobile show at the International Amphitheater in Chicago.

The T. P. Methodist Guild met Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Mary Morton. Election of officers was held and the following elected: Mrs. Augusta Lumbert, president; Mrs. Bert Rowe, secretary; Mrs. Cecil Bullock, Birthday chairman; Mrs. Burley Anfield, Ways and Means. Mrs. Blanche Yepsen, Treas. Mrs. Mary Morton is in charge of securing news of the servicemen outside of the church. A bulletin of news compiled by the women is being sent to thirteen boys in service. In addition to the boxes of cookies and candies sent to the boys, they will each receive a box of selected candy on their birthdays.

The next meeting will be held March 15, 7:30 p.m. in the church social room. Any woman interested in helping in this project try to attend the next meeting.

Ten members of the Birthday Club attended the birthday party of Mrs. Golda Strassenberg Friday evening. Games were played and refreshments served, everyone received a prize.

Building for Exceptional Children to Be Dedicated

This new Special Education Building at Illinois State Normal University will house a state-wide program for the education of teachers for all types of exceptional children.

Educational Opportunity Increased In Illinois for the Handicapped

Normal, Ill., Feb. 21—Progress in the "Illinois Plan" for the education of handicapped children will be recognized here March 2 by the dedication of the $2,850,000 Special Education Building at Illinois State Normal University.

A three-day program of conferences, talks by visiting specialists, dinner meetings, and tours of the new building will be climaxed on Friday evening, March 2, by the dedication ceremony featuring Mrs. Spencer Tracy of Los Angeles, Calif., and Lt. Governor Sherwood Dixon of Springfield, Ill.

The new building, the largest and most valuable ever constructed on the ISNU campus, was started two years ago and was first opened for use in September, 1950. It includes facilities for the education of teachers for all types of exceptional children and for the operation of a laboratory school for 300 children from kindergarten through high school.

The State of Illinois is gradually taking a place among leaders in educational opportunity for the handicapped. Recent legislation has made funds available for the excess costs of the education of children who are different from others in speech, hearing, sight, or in social, mental, or physical development.

The "bottleneck" today in progress in special education is the lack of qualified teachers. The new building at ISNU will make the university a state center for the education of teachers for all types of handicapped children.

The need is emphasized by recent U. S. Office of Education figures which show that one of every eight children need some form of special education.
